Carolling with Conviction was a community event involving the singing of Christmas Carols in front of the Remand Detention Centre in Winnipeg. Its intent was to remember and raise the spirits of people behind bars who are separated from loved ones at a time of year associated with families coming together in festive celebration.

The event was recorded Thursday December 22, 2011. The completed 30 minute program included excerpts from conversations with attendees and an introduction to the event by lead organizer Jacquie Nicholson. It aired Christmas Day. The producer was CKUW news contributor Michael Welch.
